JEANINE FITZGERALD

When Kids Don't Play Nice

The single best childhood predictor of later success is not IQ or test scores but rather, the adequacy with which children develop the social/emotional foundation. This session draws on the most relevant research to describe one major component of social development-the many faces of play. It addresses some of the common challenges that arise when children attempt to interact and become master players.

About Jeannine Fitzgerald

“Jeanine draws on more than 30 years of professional experience to empower teachers and parents to achieve more with children “at risk.” With experiences as a certified teacher, licensed mental health professional, and mother of three children, she understands the promise of every child, as well as the diversity of their needs.” www.jeaninefitzgerald.com
